The Khmer Rouge government was overthrown in 1979 by invading Vietnamese forces, who installed a noncommunist government supported by the United States and the United Nations. The Khmer Rouge resisted and continued to fight. The Vietnamese government later dissolved the Khmer Rouge in 1996 and organized the Khmer Rouge Tribunal. The Khmer Rouge Tribunal was established as a result of the Paris Peace Accords of 1991, which called for a noncommunist government to be formed in Cambodia. The Khmer Rouge Tribunal has tried a number of former Khmer Rouge leaders for war crimes and crimes against humanity.
