a.) A familiar dialogue is one that takes place between people who use their first name when they talk to each other. The vocabulary is casual. The relationship is personal.

b.) A formal dialogue takes place between people who use their title and last name when they talk to each other. The vocabulary is formal. The relationship is formal. There is a distance that does not exist in the familiar dialogue.

To use either dialogue out of place would be rude or strange. It would definitely stop you from being able to communicate effectively and be understood as you would want to be.
